Macbeth Mr. Gillette Macduff Mr. Moore The last ten weeks of each term of oratory is devoted to the study of a Shakesperian drama in which each member of the class learns and interprets the greater part of the plav. A few weeks before the close of the term an assignment of parts is made, giving the individual members of the class the various characters of the play. As soon as the assignment is made each member of the cast begins the study of his particular character with the purpose of making a cl ar, definite personation, the atmosphere of the drama having been gained in the study of it as a whole. These recitals have a three-fold object: (i)...
